

Change

Kristin Chenoweth

Someday when I'm over you
And when I think I'm able to
Well, I might try to be your friend again
But your restless heart and rolling eyes
My jealousy, these endless fights
I've got to get out of your life
Or I will never mend
I guess I'll die a bit each day
But I'm always dying anyway
I don't have the heart to stay
And I can't take the pain
I know we've tried to no avail
Our heaven now has turned to hell
The same old hurt we know so well
But something's got to change
We both know it's got to end
The passion's gone
It's just pretend
One of us has got to make the move
We might as well just give it up
We've lost respect and there's no trust
And without this there's no real love
It's just some sad excuse
I guess I'll die a bit each day
But I'm always dying anyway
And there's nothing left but walk away
Ain't this a crying shame
A change of pace
A change of heart
The change of place
A place to start
And we'll be better off apart
Our only hope is change
And we never will
But something has to change
But someday when I'm over you
And when I think I'm able to
Well, I will try to be your friend again
But I don't want to see your face till then.

Lyrics provided by <https://www.omusic.in/>

